RFQ-006 T1

Addendum	Issued	Scope
ADD-01	2026-07-20	Test temperature wording; -40 °C endpoint retained
ADD-02	2026-08-05	On-site training venue and eight-person class confirmed

RFQ-006 §2 — No bidder-specific service revision or Northstar service amendment was received and accepted as a formal tender addendum by 17:00 Singapore time on 28 August 2026. The register is closed at tender close.

RFQ-006 §3 Register controls

RFQ-006 §3.1 — A formal addendum is a numbered tender instrument issued through procurement with an issue date and a defined effect on requirements or response instructions. Bidder questions and answers may prompt one, but an email exchange is not itself a numbered addendum. The procurement office retains the addendum text and the distribution record so the same requirement version can be applied to every response.

RFQ-006 §3.2 — ADD-01 addresses wording of the lower temperature endpoint. ADD-02 confirms the on-site venue and class size for training. Neither changes the evaluated price basis, final service date or method of recording a bidder-specific amendment. The register's close status should be considered together with each signed response when assessing whether a later claim entered the tender record.

RFQ-006 §4 Archive and acknowledgement

RFQ-006 §4.1 — The procurement archive should retain each issued addendum, the time it was released and the distribution list. Bidders should acknowledge the applicable addendum numbers in their submissions so the evaluation team can identify the requirement version used. A clarification that does not change the tender may remain in the message file, while a requirement change must be issued through the numbered addendum route.

RFQ-006 §4.2 — The register is a status record at the tender closing time. A later inquiry may help explain the history, but it cannot retroactively insert a document into the pre-close file. The evaluation team should quote the register's state alongside the relevant bidder schedule when a proposed change is material to a gate decision.
